

ORGANIZING NEIGHBORHOODS FOR EMERGENCY RESPONSE TRAINING

JUNE 11- 12, 2014

9:30AM - 4:00PM

IRONBOUND RECREATION CENTER

226 ROME STREET

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY 07105

This course links two important facets of disaster emergency management:

- Design and development of an emergency management program plan to address the organization and management of volunteers in emergency response, engaging the community, volunteer operations, logistics, communication and records administration;
- Community organizing for emergency response approach that teaches participants fundamental strategies and skills to create strong, localized social networks that can increase the response and recovery resiliency of a community when hit by a natural or 'man made' disaster.

Through lecture, discussion and hands-on activities participants can expect to gain information on:

- The Block Captain System
- Individual and Family Preparedness
- Building a "Go Kit"
- Evacuation/Shelter in Place Plans
- Design for a Volunteer Management Plan and Organizing and Registering Volunteers
- How to Manage Logistics
- Developing and Maintaining Partnerships (local emergency groups, businesses, government)
- Communication Strategies – day to day and during emergency response
- Records Administration – managing training records, team rosters & specialized responders
- Strategies and tools for engaging residents in emergency response preparation
- Strategies and tools to develop block level leadership
- Additional resources for volunteer leadership development

Coffee and Lunch will be provided.
